Naukri.com

Naukri is an exclusive Indian careers website on the Internet. It is a forum where employers, placement agencies and job seekers can exchange information, quickly, effectively and inexpensively. At Naukri, you can advertise for a job, search for a job, browse through resumes, place your resume, place your home page, visit employers' home pages, and visit other Indian and International career sites. It is a one-stop information clearing house about jobs and careers for Indians.

The Beginning

In March 1997, as the influence of the Internet was beginning to grow in India, naukri.com was launched as an employment exchange platform for employers and jobseekers to meet and exchange information. The site was launched, with databases of jobs, resumes and placement consultants. In October 1997, the service went commercial. By then, more than 50 companies had tried the services and were satisfied with the responses received. Since then, the client list for naukri.com has increased to over 7500 companies.

Info Edge started in 1989 and became Info Edge (India) Pvt. Ltd on May 1, 1995. It was in the business of selling reports and providing project and marketing related consulting services to its clients. Info Edge also provided management consulting services to a number of clients in India and abroad. The site aims to provide Indians with Indian qualifications the maximum opportunity for their career growth. It has also been promoted in all parts of the globe, where Indian qualifications are acceptable, and clients have been enlisted. Over 10 per cent of our current corporate client list consists of companies located in the USA, Africa, Middle East and Far East. Similarly, about 5 per cent of the individuals approaching Naukri are NRIs wanting to return to India.

If you are searching for a job or looking for the right employee to work in your organization, then naukri.com is the answer. One of India's largest jobs, career and employment portal, the site provides online resources for both the job seekers and the company recruiters. So, you can store your CV on the site or get it displayed there for a price, or send it to placement consultants, software companies and international recruiters listed on the site. And if you have a problem writing your résumé, the online Résumé Manager helps you sort it out. You can search the site's huge database for jobs that are listed according to various categories. There is a Hot Jobs section that lists the jobs available in the leading companies in the country. For potential recruiters, looking for the employee becomes easy as the site provides a facility to search résumés or advertise a vacancy.

The companies also have the option of placing their profiles on the site. Besides providing the job-related information, the site also provides information about other career resources. There is career advice for students and professionals, tips on preparing for the group discussions and interviews, admission deadlines at the various institutes, and links to the educational institutions and training centres in India and US.

Job Seeker Services

Naukri.com has certain paid services to offer to job seekers. These services can give the job seeker an edge in the job market.
